F2: Assigned to a student who has ceased attending, missed assignment deadlines, or who has been absent beyond the allowable limit (i.e., Not logging on twice a week- remember - just logging on and immediately logging out is not considered "coming to class.")

Final Grade Calculation

Projects / Group Assignments – (50%)

Students are required and assigned to complete four Group Projects throughout the semester. The student may choose to work individually on the assignment, but the amount of expected workload and contribution remains the same no matter the group dynamics. Each Project will be thoroughly discussed for expectations, successful outcomes, timeline, and other pertinent information during our scheduled meetings and submitted to Canvas as well. The Projects will connect to the course materials covered in class as well as current events related to our content matter and students will make connections to the impact of the humanities, both past and present while finding reoccurring themes between both.

Weekly Tests (based off assigned readings and lecture) – (30%)

Students are required and assigned to complete one chapter test each week that will be administered through our online Canvas course that is linked to this online ARH 2000 – Humanities Art course, section, and the assigned open source text. This weekly assignment will cover lectures, readings, videos, discussion(s) and the cumulative online test for the individually assigned chapter, which is due at the 'close' of each week (Sunday, 11:59pm). The Canvas modules are not subject to change and student must maintain the overall scheduled pace of the course and late work will receive an overall deduction in the potential grade. Any proposed deadline extension must be approved by the instructor prior the assignments due date.

Attendance – (10%)

Attendance will be recorded each day, via Canvas, at the starting of the schedule meeting. Students may review and monitor their attendance progress in Canvas and should fully understand that on-time arrival is just as expected and important as not leaving prior to class meeting dismissal to the overall assigned attendance grade for the semester. Being late to the class meeting pattern will also result in grade deductions and will be discussed at the beginning of the semester start.

Final Exam – (10%)

The Final Exam will be fully comprehensive to the ARH 2000 – Humanities Art course. The exam is based off of weekly tests and course content.
